Subject: Sheriff reelected next time?

It's about time to start making plans in regard to the next election for Sheriff.

You have received many votes from people who vote for you because you are a democrat, and that should always be taken into consideration. You don't want to lose those votes. But how many of those people will still vote for that reason, or vote at all?

Political events in this country are causing many to find those who run for office as democrats not good enough to vote for. Of course, everyone is free to vote for anyone for whatever reason they choose.

Why not consider leaving the Democratic party, and choosing some other banner to run on for Sheriff. Which one? I don't know. Maybe just "independent." I don't have a favorite. I'm not a democrat, and not a republican. What they do in Washington DC and other places really should not cause you to lose an election, but it can because not everyone is rational.

You don't want to lose an election because you are a Democrat.

Why would you leave the Democratic Party? Well, there are many good reasons. It's not the same party it was when you first decided to be a democrat. It's really not. I mean, I remember a long time ago to me it was just another party. Pro Union, which I liked. Now, it's predominantly radical. Democrats turn cars over, burn buildings, disrupt traffic, beat people up, and chase people out of restaurants, all in the name of a political position. Too many do not dislike, they hate.

It's just not the same old political party and many know that now.

In other subject matter, more of the people of the earth are changing inwardly to a peaceful state, so their outward circumstances are also changing favorably.

Much of the world is awake to phony staged theatrics. They are aware of phony "science" which is not science at all. They know the media consists of, to a great extent, lies.

Bad effects of 5G cell phone technology is now getting wide publicity, lately in Switzerland.
